Apprentice Instructor

AIARE supports the long-held tradition of mentorship of aspiring avalanche instructors or apprentices. AIARE defines Apprentices as aspiring instructors who do not yet meet the AIARE 1 Instructor qualifications. A single Apprentice can assist in each field group, under the direct supervision and mentorship of an AIARE Course Leader or Instructor.

During this apprenticeship, individuals gain familiarity with the AIARE curriculum, as well as building relevant experiences that form an essential foundation for engaged participation in the AIARE Instructor Training. Apprentice instructors with no less than 5 years of personal backcountry travel experience may register for the Instructor Training once they have observed at a minimum one AIARE 1 and AIARE 2 program.

Following participation in the Instructor Training, individuals may then progress through two levels of avalanche instructor qualification: AIARE Instructor and AIARE Course Leader.

AIARE Avalanche Course Leader and Instructor qualifications explained

Experience

- a. Experience is defined using AAA guidelines. 20 or more days of backcountry travel constitutes one season. These are documented days where the applicant is making decisions in avalanche terrain. Those who travel to South America or New Zealand during the North American summer can accumulate 2 seasons in one calendar year.
- b. Experience can be verified by documentation or by a letter from a professional member of the AAA, and can involve a combination of professional and recreational backcountry travel.

Education & Certification

- a. All AIARE instructors are required to have a PRO 1 certificate. All AIARE course leaders are required to have a PRO 2 certificate or equivalent.
- b. AIARE 1 instructors, who currently qualify as instructors prior to Nov. 1st, 2017, have 3 years from this date to obtain the PRO 1 certificate.
- c. Current AIARE 1 and 2 course leaders who have the (pre Nov. 1st, 2017) AIARE 3 certificate meet or exceed the new qualifications as AIARE Course Leaders.
- d. Course Leader or Instructor applicants who feel they have the equivalent training and certification can apply for a Prior Learning Assessment (PLA) and equivalence.

Instructor Training

- a. Current (pre Nov. 1st, 2017) Course Leaders that attend an Instructor Refresher (IR) in 2017 are not required to take the Avalanche Course Leader training. Note that course leaders who do not attend the 2017 IR, or observe the new three-module recreation course structure will become “inactive.” Course observation of all three REC modules (Avalanche Rescue, AIARE 1 & 2) is required to reactivate course leader status.
- b. Instructors that meet the current instructor qualifications and are currently practicing at the time of the Nov. 1st, 2017 roll out are not required to take the AIARE Instructor Training. Those applying for AIARE instructor status after Nov. 1st, 2017 will be required to attend the AIARE Instructor Training.
- c. The year after completion of the Instructor Training, attendance at the annual Instructor Refreshers will be required. These 1-day events will be timed with the regional Snow and Avalanche Workshops to encourage attendance at both events and continued professional development. Note, the Instructor Refreshers can be attended online or remotely.

Professional Association

- a. All instructors are required to be AAA members. Current course leaders are required to have AAA Professional Membership. The AAA provides opportunity for continued professional development and networking. Currency and association membership are considered hallmarks of professionalism.
